FAKULTA
SOCIÁLNÍCH VĚD
Univerzita Karlova

American Sociology since 1945: Rise and Fall?

Prof. Stephen Turner (University of South Florida)

2. května 2017, 14.00
místnost č. J 1034 (Aula), FSV, Jinonice

In the period after 1945, American sociology rapidly developed and produced internationally known intellectual leaders, dominating world sociology for the next twenty years or more. But the student revolt of the sixties, together with the economic crisis of the seventies, led to a sharp contraction in student numbers. At the same time the field was transformed by feminist activists, and revived as a different field after 1986. What did it become, and why?